CHICAGO — Sinbad the gorilla nursed a bad hangover today—just like anyone else not used to being out on the town.

One of the largest gorillas in captivity, the six-foot, 500-pound Sinbad slipped out of his cage Monday and romped through 20 minutes of freedom, his first since coming to Lincoln Park Zoo in 1948 as an infant.

Sinbad confined his wanderings to the inner corridor of the monkey house, but alarmed zoo officials evacuated 75 persons from the building and called for the police riot squad.

At one time only a screen door separated the powerful animal from complete freedom.

"If he had come out we would have had him killed," said Gene Hartz, assistant zoo director. "There was nothing to keep him in but a screen door—and he could have taken it right along with him."

Hartz felled Sinbad by firing a 200-milligram dose of tranquilizer into his shoulder. Five hours after the injection Sinbad was up and around.

"He'll have a pretty bad hangover but that's about all," Hartz said.

Sinbad's short-lived freedom began after a keeper momentarily left his cage door open while sleeping. The gorilla lumbered down a hallway into a kitchen where four workers were fixing lunch for the animals in the monkey house.

"I never had an ape in my kitchen before," said Barney Gisutti, 54, one of the workers. "I looked twice. Then I went out the front door."

MELBOURNE—Ten Melbourne University students armed with axes and hammers today set a world record by smashing a piano to pieces in two minutes 2.6 seconds. The old mark was Cornell University's seven minutes.

MOSCOW—A ballet director said today the Soviet Union needs a new popular dance step to combat the twist, which is invading Russia.

Igor Moiseyev, who conducts the famed Moiseyev Ballet, said the Soviets must replace the twist with "vibrant optimistic dances with a sporting and comradely spirit—something that is lively and not a death jig."

Moiseyev made his views known in an article in the literary gazette.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Two birds at the Milwaukee County Zoo were under glass today where they could be seen but not heard.

Zoo director George Speidel said the two Myna birds, Joe and "What's His Name," were put in soundproof exile because they used language so foul "you couldn't print it."

growing province in Canada and needs its own banking facilities."

Asked if he did not feel the recently approved Laurentide Bank and the Bank of Western Canada would fulfill this need, Bennett replied bluntly: "I'm only concerned with the Bank of British Columbia, not any others."

The B.C. premier recently travelled to Ottawa and applied to the Senate banking committee for a charter, but it has postponed a decision.

If his application is rejected, Bennett threatened to "go it alone," but has not revealed his plan of attack.

If approved, Bennett's bank would set a precedent, and there is fear among some financial experts other provinces would follow suit.

The interest expressed by Lesage has been the only thread of such thought.

Ontario Premier John Robarts, when questioned on the subject, said: "We have no such plan."

Financial experts were also asking "if other provinces start their own banks what would this do to Canada's financial structure?"

More explicitly, they ask what would happen if the provinces channelled their municipal, departmental and commercial business into provincial banks?

GIVE LEADERSHIP

Another question would be the results if a large number of local industries, for political or other reasons, found it advantageous to keep their accounts with provincial banks?

Bennett is unphased by these hypothetical questions, and said steadfastly that British Columbia's economic growth would increase at a still faster pace with its own bank. (A chartered bank has the power of extending credit by 10 times the amount it has on deposit with the Bank of Canada.)

"All we want is to give some leadership in this field," Bennett explained.

He noted that under provincial legislation drafted for the proposed Bank of British Columbia, the province would control a maximum 25 per cent of the shares.

"But the public response we have had—just since the idea has been in the early stages, has been very high, and we feel an equity of 5 or 10 per cent would be sufficient, we would be under full control of the Bank Act and pay all taxes."

HOME GARDEN

Bronze, Gold, Purple Are Colors of Fall

By HILDA BEASTALL

The colors of fall may typically be in the bronze-gold-purple shades, for a number of garden plants coming into bloom in late summer are within this color range.

Tritonia (or montbretia, as it was known years ago) is one of these, and when grown with some of the care lavished on gladioli, will repay with a long season of interest.

The roots of tritonia are corms, resembling miniature gladiolus corms, and, while hardy enough to remain in the garden over winter, really should be lifted every second year for division and replanting.

If left undisturbed for years, the flower stems will become smaller and fewer. The gracefully arching, three-foot sprays of orange-yellow, starry flowers are so attractive among the light green narrow leaves that the effort of digging the roots is well repaid.

The job can be done either in early winter if the soil is still workable, or in early spring. So long as the corms are back in the soil by about the end of May they will bloom by August.

They are just coming into flower now, after being fed during the summer with the balanced fertilizer given to other flowering plants.

Land Fighting Pace Hotter In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Viet Nam (UPI)—A U.S. Army enlisted man was shot and killed today in a Communist ambush 50 miles north of Saigon.

He was the 180th American killed in action in Viet Nam.

Four Vietnamese soldiers riding in a jeep with the American special forces man also were killed.

The five were killed when Communist Viet Cong guerrillas opened fire with automatic weapons on their jeep as they headed home from a morning of work on a project helping Vietnamese villagers clear land for crops.

The incident focused attention anew on the land fighting a day after President Lyndon Johnson ordered elements of the United States Seventh Fleet to shoot to kill if attacked while patrolling international waters off Communist North Viet Nam.

FOLLOWS ATTACK

The president's order followed an attack by three Soviet-made torpedo boats on the destroyer USS Maddox in the Gulf of Tonkin, Sunday. The Red torpedo boats were repelled, and the Maddox was joined in patrol by the destroyer USS C. Turner Joy, named for the American admiral who conducted the first long armistice talks with the Communists which ended the Korean War fighting in 1953.

Several United States warships visiting the British-owned city of Hong Kong, on the fringe of Red-held mainland China, left port Monday night and this morning for secret destinations. Newspapers speculated the warships, including the aircraft carrier USS Constellation, were bound for the Gulf of Tonkin.

But in Tokyo, a spokesman for the United States Seventh Fleet declined to make any comment other than to say that "the ships have left Hong Kong for routine operations after a normal in-port period."

TOTAL NOW 264

The latest combat loss of the special forces soldier brought the total number of American deaths in Viet Nam to 264 since large-scale military aid began in 1961. Besides the 180 killed in action, another 84 have died in Viet Nam from other causes.

Another clash occurred before dawn today less than 10 miles from Saigon and only two miles from the Vietnamese army's military academy at Thu Duc. A defense ministry spokesman said Communists killed one government militiaman and wounded another, with a third listed as missing.

U.S. defense and state department officials believe the PT boat sank. A reconnaissance flight over the area, in international waters 30 miles off North Viet Nam, found no trace of the craft.

Admiral Grant Sharp, senior U.S. military commander in the Pacific, said today: "The last time we saw it (the PT boat), it was in flames. I don't know if it sank but the chances are pretty good it did." He said there were no North Vietnamese casualties "that we know of but there is no way of telling."

The state department described the engagement as an "unprovoked attack" and said it was sending a protest to the North Vietnamese government.

GI Stabbed to Death In Army 'Race Riot'

HANAU, Germany (UPI)—One soldier was stabbed to death and another injured in a street clash here between American white and negro servicemen, a U.S. army spokesman said today.

The 3rd Armored Division spokesman said the dead man and the injured man both were white.

The German press described the incident as a "race riot."

But Hanau Lord Mayor Herbert Droses denounced the headlines. He said a personal inquiry into the fight Sunday night convinced him it was "just another beerhall fight—with no racial implications."

The army spokesman said race relations at the Hanau post were good.

The brawl broke out outside the Golden Keg, a tavern in

Two Shot, 16 Hurt In Rioting

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP)—Hit-and-run bands of Negro youths retreated from the riot-torn streets of Jersey City early today after a second night of racial violence that left two Negroes shot and 16 other persons injured.

Police arrested seven Negroes for disorderly conduct, bringing to 20 the number of arrests since bloody fighting broke out Sunday night.

More than 100 policemen, who earlier had been the targets of gasoline bombs, bricks and rocks hurled by the youths, patrolled a wide area in the predominantly Negro southern section of the city.

Windows in about a score of stores were smashed and some were looted in the latest outbreak.

In a midnight press conference more than three hours after the riot began, Mayor Thomas J. Whelan said that in his judgment the violence had "passed its peak."

But he reiterated his warning that "we will use all the forces and power at our disposal to see that law and order are maintained."

ON ALERT

He continued the entire 900-man police department on standby alert but said help from the state would not be needed.

Whelan said the situation in this city across the Hudson River from New York was one of "hooliganism versus law and order." The city has 275,000 residents—17 per cent Negroes.

The two Negroes who were shot and an unidentified white man who was reported to have been dragged from his truck and stabbed by Negroes were the only injured persons detained at the Jersey City Medical Centre. All were reported in good condition.

The Negroes were identified as Louis Mitchell, in his early 20s, and John Dudley, 21. Mitchell had a wound in his neck and shoulder and Dudley suffered a flesh wound on his forearm.

Authorities said they could not determine immediately how they had been shot.

Monday's riot broke out as Negro leaders were meeting with Mayor Whelan. The meeting ended when reports of the riot reached the mayor's office. A Negro leader said nothing was accomplished.

The trouble began, police said, when Negroes hurled rocks at passing cars at Grand and Woodward Streets, near the scene of the fighting Sunday night.

VANCOUVER MAY ASK AID FOR COLISEUM

VANCOUVER (CP)—The city may ask the federal and provincial governments to help purchase a $2,400,000 coliseum site and a $1,100,000 site for the CBC, William Graham, city planning director, said Monday.

He told a special council committee that purchase of the two tracts of land may qualify for provincial and federal cost sharing under new sections of the National Housing Act. These sections deal with blighted areas and urban renewal.

The city is considering giving the more expensive site to the Toronto Maple Leafs, who have promised to construct an $8,000,000 coliseum on it.

Maple Leaf officials are due here within a week to put their proposal in writing.

The city also has a choice site in mind with which to try to bait the CBC away from an abandoned RCAF supply depot at Kitsilano Beach here.

The CBC has laid claim to 12 of the 26 acres at the base, but the city wants all of it for park development.

SALINGER APPOINTED TO SENATE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Pierre Salinger, press secretary to two presidents, today was appointed U.S. Senator to succeed the late Clair Engle.

"We feel the recent racial disturbances in the United States have had no effect on our relations here or on the army's serious incident rate. The latter, in fact, is on a downward trend," a spokesman for U.S. Army European headquarters at Heidelberg told United Press International. The "serious incident rate" refers to all acts of violence, racial and non-racial.

Salinger, jovial, cigar-smoking former press secretary to the late President John F. Kennedy and President Lyndon B. Johnson, faces a Nov. 3 general election contest against Republican George Murphy.

Stanleyville Expected to Fall to Rebels

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—Congolese soldiers today clashed with rebels on the outskirts of Stanleyville and latest messages from the east said there was anxiety that the city would fall shortly.

A message from Stanleyville said soldiers had fought with the rebels only 13 kilometers (about nine miles) south of Stanleyville this morning.

Stanleyville has a garrison of about 600 men. Its fall to the rebels, who are being backed by the Chinese Communists, would effectively cut off the entire northeastern Congo and provide a capital for the "popular republic of The Congo" proclaimed recently by rebel leader Gaston Emile Soumialot.

The message described the rebels as "lightly armed" but added that they had trucks.

White women and children are being evacuated by air from the Stanleyville region and two plane loads already have reached Leopoldville. Another message said Congolese troops still were holding out at Wanie Rukula, about 30 miles southeast of Stanleyville.

High speed belongs on the race track, not on the road

We're not against auto racing. It's an exciting sport. We are against glamourizing high speeds to sell cars. This glamourization all too easily puts excessive speed where it doesn't belong—on the road, where trouble can start.

SOUR GRAPES?

Some people will claim Rambler's attitude is "sour grapes" because Ramblers don't have "high-horsepower" engines, high performance, and can't go fast.

It's not true. Our cars do have high performance and more horsepower than you'll ever need. Our cars can go 100 m.p.h. or more, too. But we don't glamourize this fact. We think that it's wrong to glamourize excessive speeds and excessive horsepower in order to sell cars. We, as a car manufacturer, feel we have a responsibility to act in the best interests of the public. We feel that the present glamourization of race track speeds and excessive horsepower is not in the public's best interest.

We feel there is a definite moral issue at stake.

IS EXCESSIVE HORSEPOWER WASTED?

Think about these glamourized, over-powered engines from another aspect. Under normal city and highway conditions, they're wastefully inefficient.

In stop-and-start city driving a huge engine is a hobbled race horse. Ask any racing driver. He'll tell you that this type of driving can actually damage a high-horsepower engine. Plugs are fouled, pistons are carboned, gas is wasted.

On highways, a high-performance engine must be held in check. Slower cars and 60 m.p.h. roads put the reins on horses under the hood. Law enforcement against speeding is strict.

Drivers' licences can be lost. Insurance costs can be affected. And what man who is not a professional racing driver has the reflexes and the skill to go "flat out"? Consequently, an over-powered engine is wasteful. There is horsepower that is never used. But you pay for that every time you lead those thirsty horses to the gas pump to drink.

WHAT DO WE OFFER YOU?

We offer you brilliant, responsive performance—with a difference.

Our 6 and V8 engines range from 90 h.p. to 270 h.p. They give you all the satisfying cruising power you need for all highway conditions. They're backed up by ample reserve passing power to give you a necessary, maximum margin of safety. On city street or highway, our engines will easily meet all the driving demands you'll ever place upon them.

Here's the difference. Their power is power you can use. There is no wasted power. Each of our engines provides a correct horsepower-to-weight ratio. That is, it delivers the precise amount of power demanded by the car's overall weight. It is not under-powered. It is not over-powered. It is exactly powered.

Certainly, we could beef up our top-of-the-line 270 h.p. V8 engine to 300 or 350 h.p. But what good would that do you? We offer you ample horsepower—but without the penalties.

WE WON'T GLORIFY HIGH SPEED

We're not against horsepower when it's correctly used. We're against wasteful horsepower. We're against the abuse of horsepower. We're against the glamourization of horsepower.

We spend millions to test, to improve, to build the best-designed, longest-lasting cars you can buy. But not one cent to glorify speed.

TH E TIDE OF POWER THAT carried General de Gaulle to full control of his country's domestic affairs, enabled him with a word to veto Britain's entrance into the Common Market, established France as a nuclear nation despite the alarm of its allies, and appeared about to establish the General as the undisputed leader of Europe, has washed around some sharp rocks.

One significant change in the course of events was the replacement in Bonn of Chancellor Adenauer by Chancellor Erhard. For while Dr. Adenauer gave encouragement to the de Gaulle concept of a Europe divorced from United States influence — although the matter of ultimate leadership was never fully determined — Chancellor Erhard has had different ideas.

The idea of Franco-German unity continues, and is certainly something to be cultivated not only for those two countries but for the world. But Mr. Erhard cannot see eye to eye with the French president on a number of items, and already de Gaulle is wondering if his foreign policy, resting on the alliance with Bonn, is as secure as he could

Quiet Talk on Education

AS IN THE CASE OF THE recent London Commonwealth Prime Ministers' Conference, the success of the meetings of provincial premiers currently discussing education in Jasper will lie in the absence of a spectacular victory for any one school of thought.

The men who lead nine out of 10 provincial legislatures are interested, it is assumed, in finding out the most that can be found out about the best education they can give the young people of their particular areas.

They know the important part education plays in the advancement of their provinces, the need that exists to encourage more young people to develop their talents to a high peak and to accumulate the knowledge which leads to a better life. What they can learn, one from another, in quiet discussion and in the presentation of points of view, should be of high practical value to each of them.

Premier Manning, Alberta host to the conference, has underscored the point that this is no "ganging up" of provincial premiers for a concerted attack on the federal government.

The Businessmen

THE DECISION OF B.C. HYDRO to acquire a tract of land near New Westminster in order to lease it to prospective industrial firms raises the question of how far beyond the provision of electric power the government-owned corporation should go.

Its predecessor, the B.C. Electric company, it is true, maintained a department for the encouragement of industrial customers, but is it within the duties of a government organization to go into the land-leasing business as well?

Already involved in railway and ferry transportation, construction, power production, publishing and other business ventures, the provincial government is now preparing to go into land dealing and commercial banking. All this might please Mr. Strachan and his socialist supporters. But just how far does a non-socialist government go in its penetration of normally private business fields — and using the public's money?

Not So Black and White

ONE OF THE COMPLEXITIES within the confusing school desegregation program ordered in the United States is revealed in a recent New York experience.

The issue has been given prominence by a decision of the New York State Supreme Court appellate division upholding the right of the state education commissioner, Dr. James E. Allen, to order local school districts to move children from school to school to achieve white-Negro balances in enrolments.

In the New York school which led to the court test, 75 per cent of the enrolment is Negro. Hence children are being shifted to other schools to establish a more equal distribution.

This, however, forces children to go to some schools which their parents do not favor — and the dislike is not, say spokesmen, based on the number of Negroes attending them. Parents, choosing the neighborhood in which they want to live, have

Beneficiary of the Split

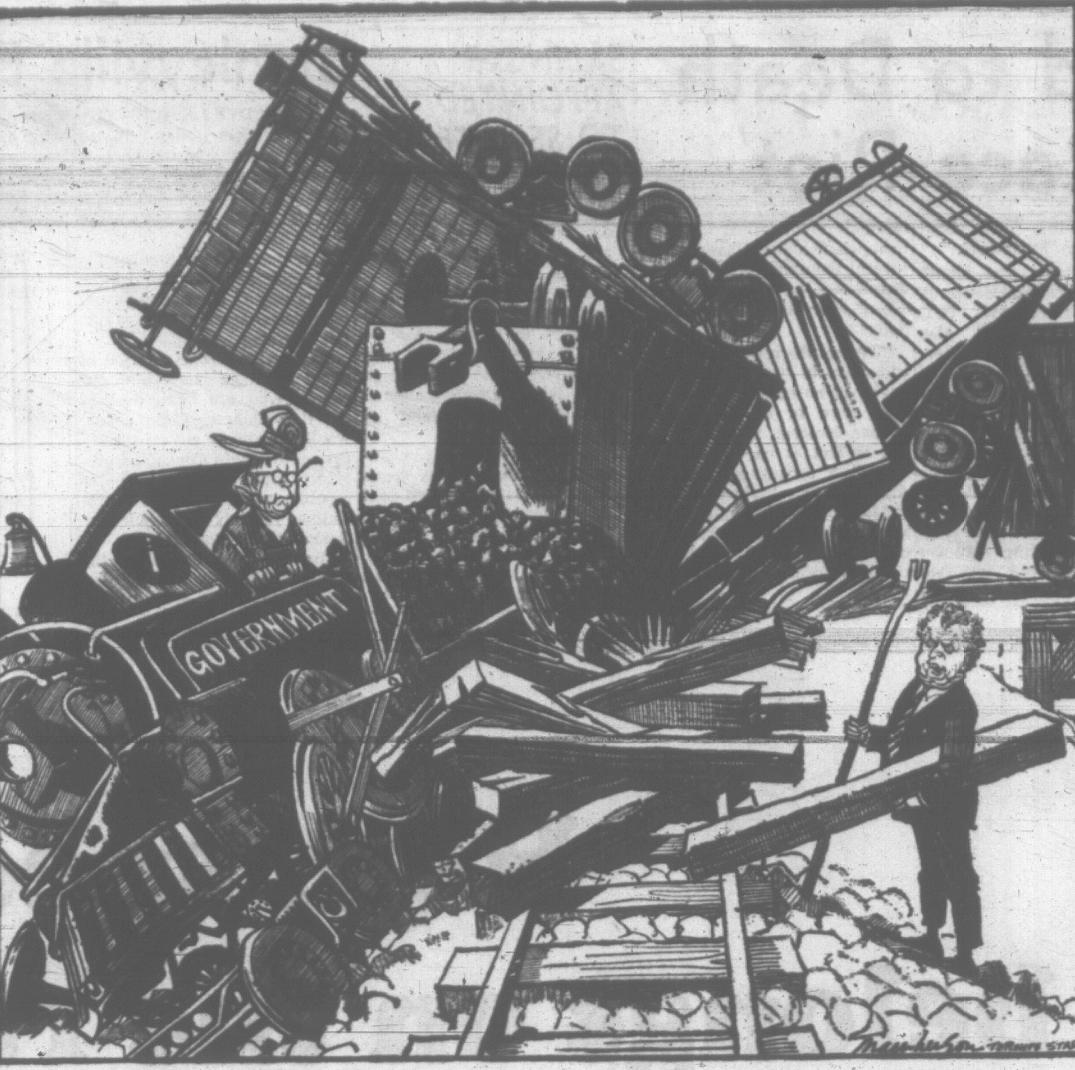

ONE OF THE BENEFICIARIES of the ideological split between Soviet Russia and Communist China would seem to be India, where a small but effective communist party has caused the government many political headaches.

According to a recent dispatch from New Delhi by the New York Times' correspondent, the Indian party has virtually completed a split into pro-Moscow and pro-Peking factions on the eve of its seventh congress. Two draft programs of party policy reflecting widely divergent views have been prepared and the congress itself will take place in two locations separated by nearly 1,000 miles.

The Indian party, although it numbers only 200,000 members, polled 11.3 million votes in the last general elections or about one out of 10. Its split into two wings will undoubtedly diminish its influence among the people of India and curb its effectiveness at the polls.

With the odds growing that political unrest will increase in the country following the death of Pandit Nehru and the illness of his successor, Prime Minister Shastri, at least the situation will not be exacerbated by the communists. They are going to be too busy fighting among themselves.

FROM WASHINGTON

By MAX FREEDMAN

A Qualified Appeal to Reason

IT will take some weeks before the effects of the appeal by the national Negro leaders to halt mass demonstrations and mass protests until the election is over, can be measured. Not even the authority of these men may be able to avert sporadic protests and the sudden appeal to violence as the result of some local disturbance. But at least they have erected a standard of moderation and responsibility to which the supporters of law and order can rally. That is no small contribution to the national welfare when so many inflammable discontents are ready to spring into a blaze in our cities.

Every movement of protest, whether it takes the form of a struggle for political independence or for the removal of ancient grievances, there is always a tendency for the movement to grow more violent and extreme. Revolutions devour their children, and they usually begin with the leaders. The French Revolution began with Danton and ended with Robespierre, just as the Russian Revolution began with Kerensky and ended with Lenin.

Growing Risk

In the American Revolution it required the immense and unique distinction of George Washington to safeguard the purposes which had driven the thirteen colonies to revolt. During the past few weeks there has been the manifest and growing risk that the accepted Negro leadership in this social and economic revolution would lose its moral authority with the Negro people as new men eager for quick victories emerged into startling prominence.

At great personal risk to their status as leaders, men like Mr. Wilkins and Dr. King and Mr. Young have decided to meet that challenge. The risk cannot be denied. They may fail. Their success depends not only on the response of the Negroes but on the willingness of a vast majority of all citizens to understand the grim issues now at stake and to provide for their settlement in a framework of law and public responsibility.

No Wish to Display Power

The first point to realize is that nothing could be more remote from the truth to believe that Mr. Wilkins or Mr. Farmer or Dr. King want to stir up strife because they wish to advertise their power. In many communities it is the prestige of these leaders which alone has kept the Negro protest from being turned into channels of deliberate and massive violence.

Instead of being denounced as "outside agitators," these leaders should have been supported as forces of moderation and reason in situations where the apostles of a wilder doctrine could easily gain a dangerous ascendancy. But this wisdom has not been sufficiently widespread to give the responsible Negro leadership a fair chance.

There has, for example, been too great an eagerness to blame the riots in Harlem and Brooklyn and Rochester on Communist agents or secret Communist sympathizers. It would have been surprising to the point of being incredible if the Communists had not tried to sharpen these discontents and create the greatest upheavals. But we lay a dangerous illusion before our minds if we believe that it is the Communists, and not the smarting injustice at intolerable wrongs, that provided the root causes of the riots.

For the most important fact of the Negro protest is that it has resisted the Communist appeal and kept its influence to a bare minimum. That will remain true so long as the Negro has a peaceful vent for his grievances and a clear road to the improvement of his status in the life and progress of the general community.

In the history of the long struggle for civil rights this declaration by the Negro leaders may well be regarded as a salient document. Such an appeal cannot often be repeated, and if the authority of these leaders is repudiated or compromised, the dangers of anarchy and violence will be immeasurably increased.

It is lamentable therefore that the leaders spoiled their statement with their emphasis on partisan political considerations. The urgent need of the time is to deal with the Negro cause sensibly and justly, without regard to the electoral chances of President Johnson and Senator Goldwater.

Mischiefous

The offer of a three months' period of grace is mischievous rather than constructive if it is merely based on the political calculation that repeated riots will hurt the President and help the senator. Rather should the offer be regarded as a solemn appeal to the American conscience and to all the resources of goodwill now available in the American community so that definite progress can be made in solving Negro problems. We should be thinking of jobs and schools and homes for the Negroes, not for either candidate. Anything else is cheap and contemptible.

A half century ago today the world plunged into a "war to end war" that proved to be merely the prelude to a worse one. The poets of England reflected the high purpose of the time, as in Lawrence Binyon's lines below. But soon the feeling changed, and the savage indictments by Sassoon and Herbert followed as the real nature of modern warfare became clear:

The following verses, excerpts from an anthology by Brian Gardner (Methuen), are reproduced as a salute to this memorable anniversary in the history of Canada and of the world.

THE FOURTH OF AUGUST

Now in the splendor go before us,
Spirit of England, ardent-eyed,
Enkindle this dear earth that bare us,
In the hour of peril purified.

The ears we hugged drop out of vision,
Our hearts with deeper thoughts dilate.
We step from days of sour division
Into the grandeur of our fate.

"Good morning; good morning!" the General said
When we met him last week on our way to the line.
Now the soldiers he smiled at are most of 'em dead,
And we're cursing his staff for incompetent swine.

As they slogged up to Arras with rifle and pack.
But he did for them both by his plan of attack.

AFTER THE BATTLE

So they are satisfied with our Brigade,
And it remains to parcel out the bays!
And we shall have the usual Thanks Parade,
The beaming General, and the soapy praise.

You will come up in your capricious car
To find your heroes sulking in the rain,
To tell us how magnificent we are,
And how you hope we'll do the same again.

And we, who know your old abusive tongue,
Who heard you hector us a week before,
Who have bled to boost you up a rung—
A K.C.B. perhaps, perhaps a Corps—

We who must mourn those spaces in the mess,
And somehow fill those hollows in the heart,
We do not want your Sermon on Success,
Your greasy benisons on Being Smart.

We only want to take our wounds away.
To some warm village where the tumult ends,

And drowsing in the sunshine many a day,
Forget our aches, forget that we had friends.

Weary we are of blood and noise and pain;
This was a week we shall not soon forget;

And, if indeed, we have to fight again,
We little wish to think about it yet.

We have done well; we like to hear it said.
Say it, and then, for God's sake, say no more.

Fight, if you must, fresh battles far ahead,
But keep them dark behind your chateau door!

Mr. Goldwater and the Western Alliance Attitude

EMMA ALBRACHT (1888-1935)

This Viennese spinster lived alone and lavished all her love on her canary. One day she found the bird gone. Before killing herself, she wrote this note: "I could not go on living after the unfaithfulness of my beloved canary, Hansi, who for six years had been my sole companion."

FROM LONDON

Mr. Goldwater and the Western Alliance Attitude

EUROPEAN reaction to the candidacy of Senator Barry Goldwater remains for the most part what it was on the day of his nomination — hysterically fearful.

But some limited circles (who have not yet made their presence felt in the press) are attempting the beginnings of a reasoned assessment of the senator's meaning to Europe. The general tendency is to regard Sen. Goldwater as a bogeyman. It is often dirtier here to call a man a right-winger than a left-winger. A right-winger is equated with a Fascist here as easily as a left-winger is equated with a Communist in the United States. Thus some European newspaper articles have linked Sen. Goldwater with Adolf Hitler.

The first danger of this extreme foreign reaction is that it could smell of interference to the American electorate and backfire to Sen. Goldwater's benefit. The second is that it could leave European powers woefully unprepared to deal with a Goldwater administration now or in 1968 or in 1972.

The Liberal view is that a united European front will be needed to successfully counter extreme Goldwater policies toward East Europe.

The Conservatives, as governing party, can say least of all officially do about Sen. Goldwater. But the sole contribution of Conservative campaigners has been to stress that he makes Britain's possession of its own hydrogen bombs more important than ever. The French Gaullists say the same thing for the French bomb. The German Gaullists use Sen. Goldwater to embarrass Chancellor Erhard's policy of whole-hearted co-operation with the United States.

Strangely enough, a possible first approach of European governments to a Goldwater administration may be to exploit one point of similarity between Gaullist and Goldwater attitudes. Sen. Goldwater has castigated the present administration for dealing with the Russians over the heads of American allies. This is exactly the fear of Gaullists, especially in Germany.

Threat to Erhard

The possibility of a Soviet-American agreement at the expense of German interests is continually held over Chancellor Erhard's head by Dr. Franz-Josef Strauss and his other opponents. Given that Sen. Goldwater as president would fulfil his commitment to discuss approaches to the Eastern bloc with his allies; this may be the time for the allies to point out in return their views on the virtues of East-West trade, the dangers of brinkmanship, and on Sen. Goldwater's ambivalent attitude to American-European trade.

If he ever reaches the White House, he will find that no European government will buy a Dulles-type ideological approach to foreign policy. The onus will be on him to accept that co-operation with his allies means abandonment of his wider ideas. But if this is not to result in either American isolationism or go-it-alone belligerency, skilful European diplomacy will be required.

There is little sign, however, that any governing party here is studying an initiative to preserve the alliance and further the defense under a Goldwater presidency. Except for a few intellectuals outside governments, Sen. Goldwater is treated as a spectre that will vanish in November. This he may well be, but Europe has too often awakened to find its spectres real.

Understanding Needed

Whether such a thing comes to pass or whether, as the saying goes, the Republican party destroyed itself at the Cow Palace, the United States could use a little understanding at this moment.

The initial outcry here was that Sen. Goldwater's election to the presidency would mean an American retreat into isolation and the destruction of NATO. But, of course, he has neither of these things in mind.

His books, his recent interview with the German magazine Der Spiegel, and the Republican platform contain dedications to co-operation with allies and to a strong NATO. His acceptance speech expressed the future of the Atlantic community in most glowing terms. The problem that not one West European power, in or out of NATO, approves a "roll-back of communism" policy toward the East.

Clyne Defended By Union Leader

NANAIMO (CP) — A labor leader has criticized "vile statements" made by fellow unionists about J. V. Clyne, chairman of the board of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., and other industrialists.

President Alistair McLeod said at a meeting of the Nanaimo, Alberni and District Labor Council that Mr. Clyne is just an officer of his company. "And he has been doing a very good job for the people he represents. There is very little to be gained by denouncing him."

"If labor leaders worked as hard for their people as does Hon. J. V. Clyne for his, we might get somewhere."

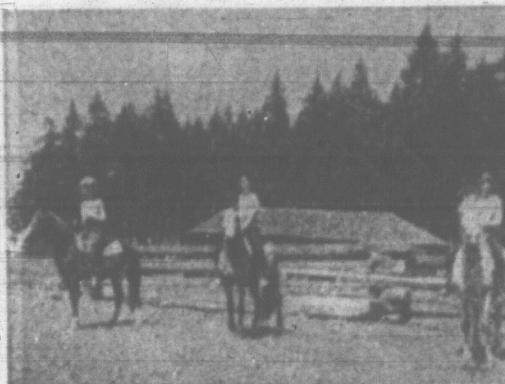

Mr. McLeod questioned whether the present settlement of the office workers strike at the FULFORD—The annual sports festival and beef barbecue will be held here on Saturday.

Softball teams from Victoria, Saanich and Salt Spring Island will compete for honors on Fulford Sports Field, starting 10:30 a.m.

There will also be a baby show, children's sports and dancing in Fulford Hall in the evening.

Mac-Powell operations at Port Alberni was a victory as claimed at a conference of the B.C. Federation of Labor last month.

"The settlement was a step on the road to binding arbitration, and I question very seriously whether this is a victory for the trade union movement," he said.

The federation conference had simply vilified Mr. Clyne without going into the real problems that confronted the labor movement.

TWO LESSONS

The Port Alberni strike had taught labor two lessons: That there is little to be gained from personal attacks on industrialists such as Mr. Clyne and "The labor legislation we don't like is the same legislation we as citizens of the province voted for."

Bud Handley of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said he agreed with Mr. McLeod's remarks about the federation conference.

"I didn't like the back-scratching that went on during the conference," he said.

He also had some doubts on the "victory" in the Alberni Valley.

SUNBATHERS AIM PROTEST AT LOW FLYER

COMOX (CP)—FO Joseph Charles Giroux from the RCAF station here was fined $200 for low flying after he told a court he was practising "coast crawling."

He explained he was flying at about 200 feet practising navigating by following the coastline at low altitude.

The legal minimum altitude where he was flying is 500 feet.

Giroux, a radio operator, was charged after sunbathers at Qualicum Beach on Vancouver Island complained a small civilian plane was flying at low altitude over the beach.

You Just Can't Beat Country-Style Living

By JEAN BAINES

A visit to the zoo is tops with children of all ages. But for young Steve Aldersmith there is nothing to beat a day on the farm.

For Steve, an 11-year-old city boy, the smell of new mown hay and the lowing of cattle being rounded up for milking is a schoolboy's dream come true.

And Steve should know—he will be spending the rest of the summer down on the farm.

He is one of several youngsters attending the latest in summer pastimes—a dude ranch for children.

The novel idea is the brainchild of John Archer and his wife Mary.

New Ponderosa

They have turned their 130-acre Kelvin Creek Ranch at Fairbridge, five miles south of Duncan, into a miniature Ponderosa.

And the plan is proving just as popular with the kids as television's Bonanza ever was.

"Simply terrific," was how Steve, of Vickery Street, Victoria, put it as he watched his first cattle round-up.

"This is much better than watching TV."

New Experience

And until this summer Steve, a pupil at Royal Oak Junior Secondary School, had never been near a horse or a sheep.

"It's amazing just how quickly the kids pick everything up," said John Archer.

"They seem to take to it like a fish to water. They don't have to do anything while they're here, but there's no stopping them."

Many of his "ranch hands" are teen-age girls on summer vacation.

For most of the boarders are from Victoria, training to be doctors, nurses, teachers, even scientists.

They will never need to milk a cow, round up cattle, clean a barn or ride a horse.

But all agree on one thing—life on the farm is "great."

New Ski Lift For Comox Area Next Year

COURTENAY — A ski-lift on Forbidden Plateau will be in business next year, says Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell.

He said Sunday the lift will be working by the fall of 1965 or earlier on an 140-acre area immediately above the Forbidden Plateau Lodge.

He was speaking to Vancouver

Island civic and business leaders during a visit of Powell River and Texada Island Chambers of Commerce members to the chamber here.

He said the government is transferring a similar amount of Crown land for the area, now owned by Elk River Timber Company.

The 140 acres will be declared a class "C" park, the first on the plateau.

The trustees will be empowered to make a deal with a commercial concern for installation of the lift, though the government will retain right of approval.

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

People come and go, among them . . .

Alec Caddell. A long-time member of the Uplands, this professional auditor comes along to fill in vacant manager's post at the club-on-the-hill. "The bet here is that he'll do a good job."

Also new on the scene is Vaughn Trapp. Son of Victoria Golf Club professional Paul Trapp. Vaughn officially started work Monday as an assistant in the Oak Bay pro shop.

He almost never made it.

The soon-to-be 21-year-old was detained in England for almost three months by the fuggards who work in our immigration offices.

There was a round of golf at the Oak Bay course Saturday, and the most noticeable attributes of Vaughn were his typically English politeness and a long ball off the tee.

The company of sports-writers on hand rattled young Mr. Trapp's short game. Nonetheless, he carded a pair of 36s against Oak Bay's 33-36-69 figures. But Mr. Richard Munn, also on hand, had to be at his best to out-distance Vaughn off the tees, so rest assured there will be a refreshing new face popping up in district competition soon. (Sunday he hit Colwood with one-over-par 71.)

VAUGHN TRAPP

Vaughn is a third-generation pro (grandpappy Stanley once served with the illustrious Harry Vardon). He turned professional just before his 16th birthday and this season campaigned in 12 events on the English tournament trail.

By North American standards, the English tour trail can not be considered a golden one but Trapp was extremely pleased with his showing. He finished in the money twice before packing to rejoin his family.

If there's a noticeable difference between English golfers and their Canadian cousins, it comes on the greens. There, Vaughn noticed, "Canadians seem to be much better putters."

Going are Dick Munn and Bill Wakeham . . . to the B.C. Open, which starts Thursday in Vancouver with a pro-am event. Turnover proper starts Friday.

Wakeham starts a new job Monday, with ex-Victorian Jim Barry, and the Open could be Bill's last big tournament, for some time. Definitely, he'll pass up the Canadian Amateur, to be played in Saskatoon Aug. 17-22.

Munn has more ambitious golf plans. Following the B.C. Open, which he missed by one shot last year, the 21-year-old Cedar Hill pro will head for Halifax and the annual Canadian Professionals' championship.

Munn finished ninth in the CGPA event last year.

Incidentally, it's a tournament that Vancouver's Stan Leonard says "is very important and very underrated." All CGPA members are rated on the strength of their showing in the annual tournament.

PASSING QUICKLY NOW . . . Health inspector Elwood Groppe hit for a hole-in-one on Cedar Hill's 18th recently . . . Noel Pumfrey carded a two-over-par 75, with a double-bogey six on the 10, to capture gross honors in the Gorge Vale club championship qualifying round . . . George Murphy was runner-up with a 76 while defending champion Al MacLeod finished with a 78 . . . Wakeham, 43, out-settled for a 79 . . . Junior Gee Ferguson, a youngster to watch, picked off the last berth following a three-way playoff . . . Almost 200 will start in the B.C. Open, including defending champion Al (Tiger) Feldman of Portland . . . Other American pros entered are Al Mengert, Bob Duden, Rod Funseth, Chuck Congdon and Ken Still . . . Munn and Lyle Crawford of Vancouver are top rated Canadians . . . Leonard will pass this one up in favor of the Western Open at Chicago.

Lions Launch Season Tonight In Winnipeg

CALGARY (CP) — With the bitter pill of last season's humiliation still tasting in their mouths, Calgary Stampeders again bowed low Monday night to Saskatchewan Roughriders in the opening game of the Western Football Conference season.

Stampeders committed a few minor blunders but managed to hold the edge in the first half. The second half belonged to Saskatchewan and so did the 15-4 final.

At their last meeting in the 1963 WFC semi-finals, Saskatchewan overcame a 26-point deficit in the second game to oust the favored Stampeders.

WFC action tonight sees last year's league champions, British Columbia Lions, meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Manitoba capital.

(Tonight's Lions-Winnipeg game will be televised on Channel 8 at 6 p.m.)

The 18,500 fans Monday night expected to see Stampeders avenge last year's loss. Instead they watched a former Calgary player, Ed Buchanan, romp 92 yards for a spectacular Saskatchewan touchdown six plays after an 11-yard touchdown rush by Roughies' fullback George Reed. Gerry James converted both majors.

Saskatchewan's 15th point was a 42-yard punt single by Martin Fabi in the fourth quarter.

KICKED ALL POINTS

Larry Robinson got all Calgary's points. His field goal attempt went wide for a single at 4:48 of the opening quarter and he made good on a second field goal attempt from 42 yards out about four minutes later.

The yards came easily for Stampeders in the first half. But each time they got within striking distance something happened and Saskatchewan had the ball.

Roughriders' most effective play turned out to be a quarterback extension to Buchanan. The first three times Riders tried it they went for gains of 34, 10 and 26 yards.

Stampeders started out with their new 4-3-3 defence but scrapped it late in the game in a vain attempt to stop Roughriders' ground attack.

Calgary coach Bobby Dobbs also switched quarterbacks, pulling Eagle Day for Jerry Keeling in the late going, but Stamps failed to come back.

Calgary's big problem was an inability to run the ball against the Saskatchewan line anchored by Bill Clarke, Ron Atchison and Garner Ekstrand.

ON GROUND

Stamps were able to gain only 69 yards on the ground and, although they made 276 yards passing, they couldn't sustain a march.

Saskatchewan gained only 27 yards passing but the ground troops rolled up 328.

Buchanan with 197 yards and Reed with 69 were top gainers for Saskatchewan. For Calgary Lovell Coleman made 12 carries for 51 yards and Day six for 21 yards.

Day had plenty of time to pass in the first half but in the second both he and Keeling were rushed heavily. Day completed 17 of 24 pass attempts for 216 yards and Keeling was successful in three of seven tries for 81 yards.

Saskatchewan helmsman Ron Lancaster completed five of 14 attempts for only 26 yards.

ARTHUR ATTWELL Known In Sports

Funeral services were held today for former Victoria sportsman Arthur Attwell, who died Friday at the age of 82.

A resident of Victoria since 1911, he was well-known as a member of the Five C's and other Victoria amateur clubs. He played soccer for the old Sons of England side and, until recently, was a member of the Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Mr. Attwell was born in Dudley, England, and served overseas in the First World War.

He was a student at Notre Dame High School, complained of illness during an afternoon practice session at Camp Columbus, a recreation camp about 20 miles from here. Weather bureau officials said the temperature reached 96 degrees during the day.

An official at Memorial Hospital said no cause of death was listed for William Warren, son of Dr. Enoch Warren, Jr., a dentist, and that only an autopsy would disclose the exact cause.

Warren was placed in an ambulance and was rushed to the hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

'FIRST YOU TAKE THE BALL . . .'

Getting a lesson in the fine art of soccer from the best in the business, Chris McLeod, 10 (centre) and Gary Taylor, 9, gaze up at first division English star Trevor Churchill.

CONCEPT OF SOCCER

Clinic Self-Perpetuating After First One Launched

By BOB BELL

The first phase of one man's concept of a soccer coaching school will become a reality Friday night.

Between 25 and 30 boys will receive preliminary award certificates from the B.C. Football Association Commission soccer clinic which opened Monday at Mt. View High.

The certificate will signify completion of the first section of a coaching school designed and organized by Len Burkinshaw.

Burkinshaw, a displaced

Britisher now living in Vancouver, met with a certain degree of success in the school's formative year last summer, and is extremely pleased to find that the clinic has more than doubled in size this season.

The certificates to be awarded Friday are the first of their kind given in North America.

The boys earn them only after completing rigorous exams on coaching, performance and practical knowledge of soccer.

The boys, classed as seniors and aged up to 18, have been given instruction by English first division star Trevor Churchill. A one-week session has been held at Mt. View High School for each of the last two summers.

This year's session will end in exams for some of the boys, and certificates for those who pass.

Those who pass will be allowed to go to the next step in Burkinshaw's plan, the intermediate phase.

The preliminary award will also entitle holders to coach schoolboys and youths in soccer. The intermediate certificate will allow recipients to coach the senior boys.

In five or six years, Burkinshaw hopes to have the final step of the school in operation, the full award which will certify coaches of full professional calibre.

One important feature of the school is that after it is established, it is self-perpetuating. The coaches graduating are certified to instruct the younger students.

Burkinshaw takes his cue as to the success of his plan by the enthusiasm the boys display on the field. Monday, over 180 youths attended sessions at Mt. View.

"These boys are thirsting for this kind of knowledge," he said. The objective is not just to teach them how to coach, but to teach them with trained people.

Classes are being held in five areas in the province this summer, and another measure of success is the fact that the Canadian Soccer Football Commission is taking up the plan to use on a national basis.

Another of Burkinshaw's objectives is to take the first Canadian team to Europe when enough players have graduated from the full program.

And Burkinshaw feels the boys' exuberance may just carry his plan through.

. . . BUT NOT THE WOMEN

They were sleepy, they had frequent headaches. That was the evidence of a kind of poisoning by smog.

"After all we couldn't get used to smog. And our sportsmen felt poorly until the very day of their departure from Los Angeles," the doctor said.

Vorob'yov wanted it clearly understood he was not being a bad sport. "You shouldn't take this article as an attempt to justify the failure of our sportsmen. My aim is just to tell about the climate conditions that to a certain extent influenced the results of the competition."

"The American sportsmen had enough time to adapt themselves to the climate in Los Angeles because they had competitions there before the USSR meet."

"The Soviet national team arrived a week before the start and we had only six days to get used to 10 hours time difference between Moscow and Los Angeles and what is more important, to get used to the smog that caused coughing and difficulty in breathing."

The smog especially hit Soviet runners, he said.

He did not say the smog affected Soviet men more than women although the Russian girls won their share of the games.

Vorob'yov also said Los Angeles was too hot.

"I am convinced under normal conditions we would have done better," he said.

Victoria Colts Grab B.C. Title With Easy Win

PENTICTON—Victoria Colt League all-stars will get no breather as they head straight to Walla Walla today for another round of tournament games.

Victoria battled its way into the Colt League regional baseball tournament in Walla Walla by trouncing Penticton 12-2 Monday for a decisive win in the B.C. championships.

The team left immediately for the U.S. The regional tourney starts Wednesday, but the Victorians won't play their first game until Thursday.

All Victoria players were hitting well and consistently in Monday's game as they peppered three Penticton pitchers for nine hits.

Winning pitcher Brian Lucas and relief hurler Al Hurst combined to hold the interior club to three hits.

Brian Craig drove in two runs with a pair of doubles, and Ike McKay accounted for two more runs with a double.

The provincial title was a long comeback affair for Victoria. After losing the first game of the tourney, the team had to fight its way through the consolation bracket to reach the final.

TEACHERS' TEACHER

Problem Cases Are a Specialty

By AB KENT

A diminutive Viennese woman with a giant-size reputation in helping problem children opened her first Canadian teacher workshop at University of Victoria Monday.

The concentrated six-hour daily session lasts only five days and gives no credits, but summer session students—teachers, child psychologists, cerebral palsied staff and remedial or special class instructors—are getting the benefit of a highly esteemed specialist.

She is Dr. Marianne Frostig, a director and organizer of her School of Educational Therapy in Los Angeles, the only such institute known in the western world.

Dr. Frostig came at the invitation of Dr. William Gaddes, head of UVic psychology department. It is the first time she has given a course at a Canadian university, although two years

First, Define His Difficulty

"A child's perception is his ability to recognize forms and directions in things, which is basic to reading."

"What I am interested in is analysis of each child's ability and to define his difficulty, why he can't read or engage in meaningful conversation," Dr. Frostig said.

There are many basic difficulties and many series of tests and individual interviews. We use all possible methods of trying to understand another human being. It takes several weeks.

"Then we try to develop a program for the individual child to compensate for his difficulties.

"A few weeks ago I was called in to help a child who couldn't read. I found all we

CITY LION WINS HONOR FOR SERVICE

Past district governor of Victoria Lions Club, Neil Foster, has been honored with the "100 per cent award."

The award has been made by Lions International for the services he rendered during his term of office.

Mr. Foster was district governor 1963-64 and handed over the post to Percy Frampton recently.

The award is in the form of a small badge with an inset diamond, and is highly coveted in Lions circles.

CIVIC LEADERS BLAST CAMPBELL

Ald. A. W. Toone blasted back Monday at Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell's criticism that the city wasn't trying hard enough to put welfare cases on social assistance don't want to work."

Civic and union officials up-Island also lashed Mr. Campbell's edict that provincial winter work grants would be cut back to pay 50 per cent of labor costs only in cases where persons on social assistance were given jobs.

Ald. Toone said city welfare officials could find only nine men who could qualify under Mr. Campbell's changed rules for the grants and he was prepared to accept their word.

The alderman also pointed out that Mr. Campbell changed his mind—at a cost this year of $110,000 to Victoria—long after the municipal budget had been set on the previous government rules. These provided grants so long as special projects were undertaken during the winter months in order to create additional jobs.

'PLUG PULLED'

"The plug was pulled on the municipalities and that's a fact no matter what Mr. Campbell says," Ald. Toone said.

Mr. Campbell's ruling was also criticized at a meeting of the Nanaimo, Alberni and District Councils.

Nanaimo Ald. George Bryce said the government "tell us at election time they are going to cure unemployment, then they do this," he said.

He said Canada needs a year-round schedule of public works to help develop the country and cure chronic unemployment.

Percy Kidder, recording secretary, said the minister's ruling will encourage men to go on to social assistance.

Cadboro Bay Road Widening Plans Complete

Preliminary preparations for widening of Cadboro Bay Road under the winter works program have been completed by Oak Bay works committee.

Monday night the purchase of three pieces of private property opposite the Uplands Golf Club for $910 was approved. Extension of the property line at this point, opposite the clubhouse, would help to eliminate the present curve there.

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White earlier decided that the three oak trees on Cadboro Bay Road between Uplands and Lansdowne will have to be removed.

A request to save the trees was considered, but Mr. White said there was no alternative if the extension of the 40-foot wide road is to be completed. He said the oaks would be replaced with boulevard trees.

This year of green lawns and scant summer is already offering to the vacationed and unvacationed its first hints of autumn. A day or two ago, we noted vine maple well-redened, some yellow leaves in the wild cherry, and a prevailing brown in the blossom clusters of the ocean spray.

At least, let it be a long, fruitful, hazy, golden fall by way of compensation; the sort that lingers through Remembrance Day and ends just short of Christmas.

Another who shares that hope is Mrs. Edwin Underwood, who, with her husband, runs the Ta-Ta-Yet Indian sweater shop where East Saanich reserve fronts the Pat Bay Highway near Saanichton.

I'm looking forward to our own Indian summer," Mrs. Underwood told us when we stopped by in the course of scouting for blackberry patches along the side-roads.

Meanwhile, these are brisk ones for the Underwoods. Chief Edwin has moved the family house to a new location beside the store, and is busy putting the finishing touches to the job. With the tourist season at its zenith, Mrs. Underwood spends much of her time behind the counter.

Among recent customers who paused at Ta-Ta-Yet—the Saanich band's name for Shady Creek which threads the reserve—was a woman about whom Mrs. Underwood hopes to learn more.

Unobtrusive and pleasant-spoken, she bought a little totem for a souvenir, and slipped away after signing the guest book.

"Princess Salleh Haig," her signature reads. Home address, Kenya.

The remainder of the page, and those before and after it, are a roll call of American states and Canadian provinces.

"When we started here a few years ago," Mrs. Underwood recalls, "I was timid about dealing with tourists.

We Indians are quick to retreat into our shells; especially if we feel someone may be unpleasant.

"But I needn't have worried. Everyone is very nice, even the few who come in and ask for a 'siwah' sweater."

When confronted with that term, hateful to Indian ears, Mrs. Underwood feigns bewilderment.

"I don't know that word," she informs her customer amiably. "But I do have

The youths were spotted taking a sweater in a store. On being caught a short while later it was discovered they had taken other articles from various stores earlier in the day.

Their parents came here by air Monday night, paid for the articles the boys had stolen and took the lads back home.

Keepers Force Captive Shark To 'Breathe'

A mud shark, netted Saturday off the west coast of Vancouver Island, is standing on her tail today, and that isn't good.

Sharks must keep moving so that water is constantly passing over their gills. They are unlike other creatures of the sea who gulp water to get their supply of oxygen.

The captured shark, transferred to the Undersea Gardens Sunday, is standing still today and divers at the Gardens are worried she may die for lack of oxygen.

Divers attempted on Monday to keep the shark on the move as they chased her around the pen, but today she cannot be chased. But the divers are not giving up yet; after preparing a rope halter for the shark they took off in a boat with the shark in tow.

Diver Bruce Champion said it is difficult to keep sharks in captivity but he hopes today's expedition will give the captured shark the oxygen she needs to survive.

UBCM Blasts Campbell Plan For Grants

The Union of B.C. Municipalities announced today it has made formal protest to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell against his ground rules for provincial winter works grants.

In a circular letter to civic councils, received at City Hall this morning, the UBCM said it was obvious the government's reduced participation, two months after municipal budgets have been set, would upset many winter work plans.

It urged municipalities to bombard the minister with individual protests if the policy change will cause hardship.

The UBCM has asked that this change in policy be rescinded or that it at least not be put into effect until the winter of 1965-66 in order that this year's winter works plans need not be affected and that you will have proper warning of reduced provincial participation in the future," the letter said.

Grain Exports Set Record

Wheat exports through Victoria in the crop year just ended set an all-time record.

Shipments totalled 7,902,697 bushels compared with 7,015,599 in the 1960-61 year.

An elevator spokesman said the bulk of the figure is due to Canadian contracts with Russia and China.

Figures for the total of grains handled here in the past year are still being compiled, but Victoria Grain Elevator Co. looks for a new record.

ALL GRAINS

This would include rye, oats and others, domestic shipments as well as exports.

Total B.C. shipments of wheat last year were 225,135,688 bushels compared with 190,276,711 in 1961-62, the previous provincial record year.

Biggest single month was January, when 25,820,982 bushels were shipped. Five years ago, 15,000,000 bushels in a single month was considered exceptional.

Vancouver shipped the most—200,858,000 bushels in the year ended Friday, Vancouver Merchants' Exchange reported.

PROVINCE SETS DEADLINE

$5 Million Museum to Open by 1967

The provincial government has set a deadline of June 1967 for the opening of its new museum in Victoria.

This means that construction must start at the beginning of 1966, Works Minister W. N. Chant said today.

Tenders for the $5 million building will be called near the end of next year, he said.

The federal government will pay half the cost as its grant to B.C. for the 1967 centenary.

The museum will be built on the block bounded by government, Elliott, Douglas and Belleville.

Elliott St. will probably be closed off to traffic.

Several stories high, the building will include a wing for the provincial archives with provision for future expansion.

The provincial library will not be moved from its present location in the main Legislative Buildings.

Mr. Chant said negotiations are under way to buy nearby property for new parking facilities.

Eventually there will be a multi-level parking building, but this is "in abeyance" for the time being, Mr. Chant said.

Instead the plan is to pave a series of lots around the legislative precinct.

They will be paid for with $3-a-month parking fees charged all government employees.

Strategy Caucus Planned By Leaders After Hearing

Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver civic leaders are expected to hold a strategy caucus here Wednesday.

The meeting is planned a couple of hours after the second Public Utilities Commission hearing into bus fare increase proposals opens at 10 a.m. in the Law Courts Building.

Victoria city solicitor T. P. O'Grady appeared at the Vancouver hearing on the same basis and joined the chief counsel D. M. Goldie when he walked out because of the "united front" agreement.

The walk out came after the PUC rejected Mr. Goldie's argument that it would serve merely as a rubber stamp to the government's wishes unless the B.C. Hydro operations.

If this is denied, he probably will ask that at least an adjournment of the hearings be ordered to fix a later date for any opposition to the fare increases by municipalities.

This would give the municipalities time to negotiate with the provincial cabinet on the overall question of public transit before the fare question is decided.

Vancouver Mayor William Rathie and other mainland civic officials plan to fly over to catch the morning session of the hearing before holding a noon caucus with local officials to decide the next step in the light of developments by that time.

Although the Victoria hearing is restricted to the Greater Victoria transit fares, the mainland municipalities are involved.

it took the position that its jurisdiction was not restricted to bus fares alone in examining B.C. Hydro's profits and losses.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

ROME — One of the prettiest sights on the Italian landscape now is Miss Diane Cimento, the real-life wife of Sean ("James Bond") Connery, whom everybody thinks is a native Britisher . . . but who really got her stage start in Abingdon, Va., U.S.A.

She's getting famous, more or less, for her invention of "personal female air conditioning".

Now I'm not exactly recommending it . . .

"I stand in the shower with my underclothes on," Miss Cimento explained to me.

"And then I get dressed with my underclothes wet and sticking to me . . . and I stay air-conditioned underneath for quite a while . . ."

As a man I wouldn't quite understand. But Miss Cimento, an Australian who used to go to Washington Irving High in New York, and later toured the United States with Virginia's famous Barter Theatre company, from Abingdon, which is tucked in between Kentucky, West Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee, swears that she doesn't go through the problem of having her clothes starting to stick to her — because they already are.

ACCIDENTAL

"I discovered it by accident," declared the beautiful inventress, a sort of Thomas A. Edison, "when I had to get dressed very fast after being in a pool, and I kept my swim suit on and put my clothes on over it . . ."

Diane, who got an Oscar nomination for playing the gypsy hussy in "Tom Jones", is employing the Cimento air conditioning system in the heat of Rome now while wearing mountainous costumes as Contessina de Medici in "The Agony and the Ecstasy" with Charlton Heston Rex Harrison.

"And how do you feel right now?" I asked her after she had done a scene with Heston (Michelangelo) during a torrid nonstop.

"Frankly," stated the inventress, "I'm melting."

Diane never suspected back in 1950 or so, when she was living in Peter Cooper Village and trotting around Carnegie Hall studying ballet—her father, Sir Ralph Cimento, was attached to the UN—that some day she and "James Bond" would be running around London chased by their respective fans.

For when she toured the country with the Barter Theatre—Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco, St. Louis . . . nobody paid her any mind. She was a teenager.

"The Bond thing is a bit of a drag," she said.

"Recently, a whole gang of terrible Rockers and Mods started edging toward us showing they were quicker on the draw than James Bond. We took to the street and had a good old run for it."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL

In N.Y. Jackie Kennedy, Bobby Kennedy and Stephen Smith (her brothers-in-law) observed her birthday quietly at L'Interdit (The Forbidden), the private club at the Gotham. Jackie, in a black French decollete, looked very sad arriving at 10 but appeared livelier at 1 a.m. She danced with Bobby and Stephen, and refused house offered birthday champagne, sticking to scotch. Earlier she and Bobby had lunched at the Colony. At L'Interdit they had a quiet corner; but some of the sports-shirted, slacks-wearing members groped through the dark to say "Happy, Happy," which she graciously acknowledged.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects.

The question who asks the first question answered each day receives a 30-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Anne Egerton, age 10, of Phoenix, Ariz., for her question:

Why does dry ice burn like fire?

Some people use dry ice to keep their picnic drinks cool and refreshing. It does not melt in the summery heat and douse the sandwiches with water, as ordinary ice tends to do. But dry ice must be handled with care because it tends to burn the fingers.

When you touch a hot stove, everyone knows you get burned. Some of the small skin cells are destroyed, and if the burn is bad enough the cells in the tender tissue below the skin also are destroyed. Your flesh is cooked like meat, and it takes the body perhaps weeks to repair the damage. Besides, burns are very painful accidents.

When you handle dry ice, your fingers feel as if they have touched a hot stove. The painful sensation feels like a burn. But

DOES BY EXTREMES

Both burns are caused by extreme temperatures. But a hot stove is a lot hotter than boiling water, and dry ice is a lot colder than freezing water. Water boils at 100 centigrade degrees and freezes at 100 degrees colder, or 0 centigrade degrees. Frozen water, of course, is ice, and if you handle chunks of ice for too long your fingers become stiff and frozen. They even may be damaged by frostbite, which is somewhat like the damage caused by a burn.

The temperature of dry ice is 78.5 centigrade degrees, colder than ordinary ice. It is that much more dangerous to handle than ordinary water ice. A mere touch of it with your bare hands can give you a frostbite. The wound feels and looks like a burn, but its damage is done by extreme cold instead of extreme heat.

Ordinary ice is frozen water. Dry ice is frozen carbon dioxide gas, which freezes at minus 78.5 degrees centigrade. However, as the temperature of water rises it melts and becomes a liquid—and dry ice does not do this. As its temperature rises, solid dry ice breaks apart into molecules of gas. As it melts it disappears into the air as ordinary carbon dioxide gas.

NEVER COLD ENOUGH

Carbon dioxide is the waste gas we breathe out from our lungs. It is made of molecules. Each molecule is a small package of one atom of carbon and two atoms of oxygen. The weather is never cold enough to freeze the carbon dioxide in the air, so we do not find carbon dioxide in the solid state in the world of nature. Our dry ice is manufactured by putting the gas under tremendous pressure and allowing it to escape. This action causes the compressed gas to form chilly flakes of solid dry ice.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Cathy Jolly, age 9, of Burlington, N.C., for her question:

How did the Prime Meridian get its name?

The word prime is coined from older words meaning the first hour of the day. The original meaning of meridian was midday. In astronomy, the meridian is a great circle through the sky. It passes directly overhead and through both the north and south poles. In geography the meridians that girdle the globe are below the great meridians in the sky. They are the man-made lines of longitude.

The hour of midday occurs when the sun crosses our heads, and as the earth rotates the moment of midday sweeps all around the globe. But one meridian was needed as the noon hour of each calendar day. The Prime Meridian that runs through Greenwich, London, was chosen for the job, and the noon hour of Universal Time occurs when the sun crosses this meridian.

Queen Elizabeth Prefers to Make Her Own Tea; Has Special Cream Jug When Children Present

By HELEN CATHCART

Niles Cuthbert has written more about the British Royal Family than any other living writer and is considered the best authority on Queen Elizabeth II. He is the author of "Her Majesty," "The Queen and the Duke" and "Prince Philip, Sportsman."

Have you ever noticed how astonishingly the customs of tea time vary in every household? The quiet ceremonial of the tea table has always been traditionally British . . . and fittingly it is nowhere heightened with touches of more intense individuality than in the homes of the Royal Family.

If you could have tea with the Queen in her sitting room at Buckingham Palace, you would be surprised and intrigued. I handed down indeed through six generations. Though now nearly 150 years old, it is still kept in occasional use, lest it should lose the characteristic aroma of the tea.

Other tea time accessories were wedding gifts, which the Queen still uses after 17 years with a bride's youthful pride. You may admire a silver tray which was a gift from the city of Birmingham or perhaps see one of a set of gossamer lace cloths given her by the people of Malta.

There is even a charming silver caddy-spoon that tells a story of a penny subscribed by each of the nurses and youthful patients of a children's hospital.

Another little idiosyncrasy is revealed in her dislike of tea leaves. During an overnight flight across the Atlantic, Prince Philip appeared in the galley to pour his wife an early morning cup. Then he exclaimed in consternation, "Oh, dear, I've forgotten to use the strainer. Now we'll have to throw it away."

At home the Queen's page always looks over the tea tray to ensure a strainer is present. Another unfailing ritual sees a little tray set for the dogs. Ever since she was a little girl, the Queen has always put an old cloth on the carpet and mixed food in a bowl for her dog, and her corgi, Sugar, receives this attention today with wagging tail.

A Royal Doulton service was among the Queen's wedding gifts. Then there is a delectable set of old Coalport of 1820, with panels of flowers in a royal blue border, and an enviable Crown Derby service given to the Queen by the citizens of Derby.

At the same time the Queen has some delightful modern patterns. The fresh Bridal Rose design is among her favorites at Windsor, and Maroon Rockingham has the distinction of being used at Buckingham Palace and Windsor, Kensington Palace and Clarence House.

All the royal ladies are knowledgeable about china. Admiring a new pattern perhaps at an exhibition the Queen can rarely resist looking underneath a piece for the maker's mark. When visiting a Staffordshire pottery, the Queen tried her hand putting a leaf pattern on a bowl and commented "Not bad!"

Princess Alexandra, on the other hand, readily solved her own tea table problem when she admired the Luneville pattern service used by her sister-in-law, the Duchess of Kent, and placed it on her own list of wished-for wedding gifts. Princess Alexandra and Princess Margaret also share the same polka dot pattern in their series.

Flying Instructors Married Here

A flight into the realms of matrimony was taken recently by two flyers, Carole Stuart Phillips and Barry Morris.

Both were recently employed as instructors at Cassidyair Services near Nanaimo and after their honeymoon, travelling north to Terrace, B.C., they will continue their flying careers at the Terrace Air.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. C. A. Phillips, 639 Battery Street, and H. Phillips, Vancouver. She is also the granddaughter of Mrs. S. Hutchinson, Happy Valley. Groom's parents are Mrs. C. Park, Kirkton, Ont., and C. Morris, Toronto.

Rev. William Van Druten officiated at the double-ring ceremony in Gordon United Church at Langford. Pink and white arrangements of stocks, snapdragons and roses in tall baskets were used in decorations. Pews were marked with pink begonias and white heather. A gown of white organza over taffeta was worn by the bride. It was fashioned with lace jacket, high neckline and long sleeves. Overskirt extended into a short train. Only jewelry was a tiny pearl drop pendant, gift of the groom, and pearl earrings.

A pearl crown headpiece and a white Bible topped with pink rosebuds, white carnations and white heather completed her ensemble.

Matron of honor Mrs. George Copley, sister of the bride, chose a similarly styled gown of deep aqua blue. As flower girl for her aunt, petite Miss Fiona Stuart Copley, wore a pink frock.

Best man was Charles Roy George Copley and Brian Thompson ushered guests to their pews.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the Victoria Flying Services at Patricia Bay and from there were flown to Nanaimo Airport at Cassidy.

A hundred guests attended the reception held in the ballroom of the Shoreline Motor Hotel, Nanaimo. A three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's grandmother, and topped with a miniature airplane centred in the head table. Dance music was provided by an orchestra of student pilot friends of the principals.

Charles Croft of Cassidyair Services proposed the toast to the bride. Telegrams were received from San Diego and other points.

Robert Jennings, 15-year-old piper, in his full Scottish Highland regalia, played the bagpipes.

Out-of-town guests were the aunt and cousin of the bride, Mrs. George Hutchinson and Miss Robin Stuart Hutchinson, Portland, Ore.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Outside Help Is Needed!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a grandmother who believes—that the people on television can see and hear her? We have tried to explain to her that they can't—that it's only a talking picture, but it doesn't do any good. She gets all dolled up to watch television every day because she says she would hate to have Art Linkletter see her looking a fright. How can we convince her she's wrong?

SUE AND CINDY

DEAR GIRLS: Why try? Besides, ask Art Linkletter. I'll bet he thinks she looks real nice!

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago my husband and my best friend came to me and confessed that they had had an affair, but it was all over. They said they told me in order to cleanse their consciences. The woman is also married and the four of us had been friendly for years. As I look back I now realize that she cultivated my friendship so she could get next to my husband. She even used the children. I told my husband that I would forgive him, and I have really tried, Abby, but the hurt is so deep I don't think I'll ever get over it. I now refuse to be in this woman's company, but my husband says there is no reason why we can't all be friends. I get sick when I see her car on the street. Was I wrong to end our friendship or not?

DEAR WRONGED: You were right to end the friendship, and your husband is lucky you didn't choose to end the marriage as well. Stick to your guns!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE WOMAN WHO WROTE A VOLUME": Of course I've heard only YOUR side of it, but if only half of what you wrote is true, you are married to the most selfish, egotistical hypocrite who ever drew a breath. I rarely say a case is hopeless, but it would take a miracle to straighten him out.

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Husbands, Doctors, Sons Inspire Women to Reduce

When a woman has weight to lose, she must have a strong incentive or she will not be successful. The motivation may be anything from getting into a lovely dress, to getting a husband or keeping one. Sheer vanity is an incentive but this must be reinforced by stronger ones. Of course, danger to health or the requirements of a career are very potent activators.

Letters from readers who know the real joy of success may provide the inspiration you need. I'm showing you these personal letters as a privately conducted "National Josephine Lowman in Group Therapy" week—to prove other women into the same kind of action.

Listen to this:

"Dear Mrs. Lowman:

"I felt that no one cared until my 20-year-old son came home on vacation from the Air Force. He said, 'Mom, you used to be so pretty and had such a good figure.'

"Believe me, I did something about it! My bust measured 40 inches; waist, 34; hips, 44 inches. Now my bust measures 36 inches; waist, 30, hips, 40."

"Another child is going to be married in a big wedding before long and I am going to make him proud of me."

"Or this:

"My husband weighs me each morning and marks the chart himself and checks the list of foods I have eaten each night. I would not disappoint him for anything."

"Another:

"I did wonderfully with your BIP plan. I lost 30 pounds. I followed it a couple of weeks longer than the usual eight weeks. My blood pressure was a little high and so I checked with my doctor right along.

"My doctor was so proud of me. Now I have slipped and gained back ten pounds. I don't want to see him until I lose them. I am so ashamed! Please send me another BIP KIT.

"The weight chart was so helpful. I kept it taped to the cupboard door and it made me feel so good to see my weight line dropping all the time. She saved her job!

"I am a woman in the business world. My job is important to me since I must support myself." "While I do not hope or try to compete with the younger glamor girls in the office, and while I hold a much more responsible position than they and am much more important to the company, I still feel that it was important for me to lose 20 pounds which had crept up on me. I did with BIP. I not only look much better and smarter but I am more efficient because I have more energy."

"There it is. In one case the incentive was a husband, in another a physician, in another a son, and in another a career."

Troops Ordered to Catch Fanatic 'Dead or Alive'

By JOHN McCANDLE

LUSAKA (UPI) — Soldiers were airlifted today to Lundazi, Northern Rhodesia, where rampaging Lumpa warriors have massacred 150 persons. The troops were ordered to capture, dead or alive, the Lumpa leader "prophetess" Alice Lenshina.

Reports said the death toll from Monday's trail of terror and death through 18 villages might be higher because soldiers had not returned with information from Chinsali, one of the trouble spots.

The government issued the "dead or alive" order as it temporarily outlawed the fanatic sect, whose rampages in the last 12 days have cost at least 270 lives.

In a country-wide broadcast Monday night after the Lumpa massacre of 150 persons at Lundazi, Prime Minister Kenneth Kaunda threatened anyone attending meetings of the cult with seven years in prison. Kaunda said he does not dis-

Some 2,000 Negro troops under white officers are combing the bush for self-styled Lumpa prophetess Alice Lenshina, who founded the sect 11 years ago, claiming she had died and returned from heaven. She is wanted "dead or alive."

SEARCH BUSH

Government officials believe the terror at Lundazi, a market centre 400 miles northeast of Lusaka, was in retaliation for the slaying of 75 Lumpas at the sect's headquarters at Sione Zion last Thursday. The Lumpas died in a suicidal charge with spears and muzzle loaders against government riflemen.

Some 200 men and women sacked and destroyed 10 villages, attacked government offices and overran a police station in the Lundazi area Monday, a government spokesman said. Most of the victims were Negro villagers. Two Indian families and a Negro policeman also were killed, the spokesman said.

Tourists were urged to leave the area, only 10 miles from the border with Malawi, formerly Nyasaland. The government airlifted additional troops to Lundazi to pursue the raiders. It also sent planes to drop leaflets about a month if the carnage ends.

STRUCK DOWN when car ran into crowd of rival Mods and Rockers during outbreak of hooliganism at British holiday resort of Hastings over weekend, teen-age girl is comforted by police and other members of gangs. (AP Wirephoto)

THEY JUST KEPT THEM MARCHING

HASTINGS (AP) — Taking their tactics from an old nursery rhyme, police thwarted and humiliated thousands of teen-agers at south coast holiday resorts during Britain's three-day Bank Holiday weekend.

Two lines out of The Grand Old Duke of York go:

"He marched them up to the top of the hill

"And he marched them down again."

That's just what Hastings police, reinforced by two plane-loads of Bobbies from Scotland Yard, made the feuding teen-age Mods and Rockers do.

They rounded up all the Mods who wear stylish clothes and all the rockers with short leather jackets and motorcycles at opposite ends of the seaside resort and kept them marching some times and running other times.

The operation made the would-be tough guys look silly.

"What a lousy weekend," said one disgruntled youth. "The cops kept onto us all the time."

The cops won, but a disturbing new note in the teen-age violence remained today. One youth was found drowned on Hastings Beach and another fell off a Margate Cliff to his death. Both sides still are being investigated.

Seventy-four youths were arrested at Hastings in the three days but damage to the town was negligible.

About 44 persons, including six policemen, were injured, none seriously.

Reckless Driver Just As Reckless in Court

A man who police said was quite unconcerned about his driving even after it caused an accident also appeared unconcerned when he was sent to jail.

Laval Genest, Wellington, was sentenced to a $200 fine or 21 days and lost his licence after he pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

He asked Magistrate William Ostler to repeat the amount of the fine. When the magistrate told him, Genest smiled and said he would go to jail rather than pay it.

Magistrate Ostler gave Genest a tongue lashing for "outrageous driving." When Genest appeared unfazed the magistrate said, "You don't seem to care very much. The impression of the police officer was right."

Genest was arrested on Pat Bay Highway Saturday afternoon. He was going to catch the ferry and passed three cars on the right while travelling in a single lane.

His car went into gravel and skidded 150 feet before Genest cut it back on to the roadway. Then the car veered over to the wrong side and oncoming traffic forced Genest into a ditch.

His vehicle dropped five feet into the ditch and went 36 feet through bush before stopping almost on the beach of Elk Lake.

Big Mine Project Challenges Engineer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The task is to dig a mine, burrow 12 miles under a glacier and put up a big copper mill.

When that's done, mining engineer Robert Deniston Baker will bed down 450 men and their families in a special townsite, heave a sigh of regret and go back to a desk.

The challenge of building a $55,000,000 copper project at remote Frank Mackie Glacier, 600 miles north of Vancouver, is the biggest yet for the general manager of Granduc Mines Ltd.

But he is an old hand at gigantic developments.

Last year he put into production the Canadian Johns Manville asbestos property, Advocate Mines Ltd., in Newfoundland. It was a five-year, $27,000,000 task.

Before that it was a Johns Manville property near Matheon, Ont., also asbestos.

BUILD AIRSHIP

This summer he's captive to an aircraft shuttle service between Stewart, B.C., and Vancouver as he completes engineering details and cost estimates for shareholder approval.

"There is an airstrip to be built at the mine site, another at the mill site nearly 12 miles away, supply depots and living quarters to be erected and supplies to be flown in before the winter closes in," he says.

A crew of 60 to 70 men will build a 28-mile road north from Stewart through the southern tip of the Alaska panhandle to the mill site. It will cost $3,000,000.

Two crews of more than 100 men each will drill an 11.6-mile tunnel under Frank Mackie Glacier from the mine to the mill. It will cost more than $10,000,000. In places it will be 4,000 feet below the glacier surface.

Mr. Baker said it is cheaper in the long run to build the tunnel and operate ore trains to a mill at Summit Lake — on the Canadian side of the border — because of financing and tax arrangements.

Copper concentrate will be trucked to the Portland Canal and barged to Tacoma, Wash.

The mine will produce about 2,500,000 tons of ore a year.

The townsite for permanent employees and their wives will be built at Stewart.

In all, it means five years of

BIGGEST AGARICUS IN WORLD?

When it comes to edible wild mushrooms, Victoria seems to have the world's biggest and best.

The latest find is an 18-inch, 2½ pound specimen found near McKenzie Bay on Saanich Inlet over the weekend by Dave Blake, 2821 Irma Street.

Provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szczawinski says it may be the biggest Agaricus Augustus ever found.

"Records say it grows up to 15 inches," he said, "but this one is three inches wider."

The premiers could see no solution and they agreed at the end of the first day of talks that much more spade work will be required.

On pensions it was unanimously agreed to support a suggestion by Premier Robarts of Ontario that a special technical conference on portable pensions be held in October in Toronto.

BEDTIME STORY

Off-Beat Comedy Romance

Royal Theatre

"Women marry men because they enjoy reforming them," says David Niven to Marlon Brando; "with a rat like you she'd live a lifetime of ecstasy."

This seems to set the tone for an off-beat comedy excursion devised by Stanley Shapiro and Paul Henning, in which Niven and Brando are presented as a couple of con men out to fleece any mink-coated lamb which comes their way.

The lamb, in this instance, is pretty little Shirley Jones — as pretty as when she first hit the neon signs in "Oklahoma!" almost 10 years ago.

Shirley arrives in the south of France looking like the daughter of a soap manufacturer, but is really only the winner of a soap contest in which she gets a luxe holiday in a swank hotel and the clothes to go with it.

Seems like a dirty trick when Niven and Brando go to so much trouble to relieve her of what she hasn't got! But they manage to produce some hectic comedy along the way, particularly when Niven poses as a psychiatrist trying to restore the use of Brando's legs.

Brando, of course, is now laboring around in a wheelchair for the benefit of the soft-hearted

Key Role Played By U.S. Newsman In Missile Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—The story of how a Soviet intelligence agent and an American reporter played key roles in resolving the 1962 Cuba missiles crisis has been told by a former state department intelligence chief.

The reporter was John A. Scali of American Broadcasting Company and formerly of The Associated Press. His unusual role in "very informal and unofficial" U.S.-Soviet exchanges was disclosed by Roger Hilsman in an article for Look magazine.

Hilsman was state department intelligence head during the "eyeball-to-eyeball" October 1962 confrontation between the two nuclear powers and thus was one of the inner strategists who knew, as he now reports, "how close we were to war."

Scali came into the crisis picture when the Washington-Moscow communications of more normal diplomatic times had broken down.

It started with an urgent telephone call to Scali, Friday, Oct. 26 from "a senior Soviet official."

Direct Channels to Kremlin

Hilsman identified the Russian only as "Mr. X," known to be head of Soviet intelligence in the United States and a man with direct channels to the Kremlin. (Other sources said the Russian has since left the Soviet Embassy.)

According to Hilsman: President Kennedy had publicly demanded the removal of the Soviet offensive weapons from Cuba and had ordered the U.S. naval quarantine of the island. Some Soviet ships headed for Cuba had slowed up, but work on the Russian missile sites there was going forward at full speed.

"In the Cuban crisis, two of the channels were probably decisive—the very formal letters shuffling between president Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev and a set of communications through a very informal and unofficial channel."

The call from "Mr. X" to Scali turned out to be this second channel.

"Mr. X," who had had lunch with Scali on previous occasions, asked on this Friday afternoon that they have lunch right away. They met at a downtown restaurant and "Mr. X" went straight to the point. He asked Scali to find out once from his "high-level friends" in the state department whether the United States would be interested in a Cuba crisis solution under which (1) Russia pulled out its missiles; (2) United Nations inspectors were allowed to supervise the removal; (3) Moscow would promise not to reintroduce missiles to Cuba and (4) the United States would publicly pledge not to invade Cuba.

This was the outline of an approach which subsequently led to a solution of the crisis, but some Kennedy administration officials had doubts at first about whether this was a real approach from the Kremlin.

Scali went to Hilsman with the proposal, then was called in to see State Secretary Dean Rusk secretly.

Rusk told Scali that the "Mr. X" approach "was our first direct word that the Soviets might be thinking of a deal." He instructed Scali to tell "Mr. X" that the U.S. government "sees real possibilities" and suggested a meeting of representatives at the UN, but "time is very urgent."

Scali met "Mr. X" with the answer, assuring the Russian only that it came from "very high sources."

"Mr. X" tried then to dicker on other points, suggesting there ought to be inspection of U.S. bases in Florida too. Scali turned down the idea of further conditions and emphasized that time was important.

"Mr. X" hurried off to report to Moscow.

Nikita Willing to Negotiate

In the meantime, one of the famous Khrushchev letters to Kennedy had started to come in by cable. This one has never been made public, but it showed a willingness to negotiate.

That was Friday night. Saturday morning a Khrushchev message was broadcast that reigned on the communication of the night before. Moscow now was setting forth new conditions.

"This was the blackest hour of the crisis"—and U.S. strategists desperately sought a way to return to the more promising proposals of the day before. Rusk called Scali and told him to see "Mr. X" again to find out what had happened.

Scali and "Mr. X" met Saturday afternoon in a deserted hotel banquet hall. "Mr. X" changed his tune, just as the cabled messages from Moscow had reversed the Russian position.

Scali "exploded" and told the Russian "it was all a stinking doublecross." He said the United States was absolutely determined to get the missiles out of Cuba and time was running out.

The next development came from U.S. officials and arose from an idea by Attorney-General Robert Kennedy. The U.S. strategists decided to deal with the Friday signals from the Soviets, ignoring the unacceptable reversal put forth by the Kremlin Saturday.

Visiting Butterfly Declared Possible World Distance Champ

By JIM BIGSBY

A long-distance traveller arrived in Victoria Monday, complete with instructions to send him back to Toronto.

The traveller is a Monarch butterfly which could have flown 3,000 miles before its capture on Sidney Island.

This would be a new record for the longest recorded butterfly flight, T-5."

Victoria sportman Jack Todd, 451 Newport, captured the Monarch.

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two gasoline bombs were thrown today—one of them at a police car—in this racially troubled city. It was the first day-time violence after two nights of rioting, but police considered it an isolated incident.

The fire department also reported six separate fires set in an abandoned building in the fourth ward, which has been the scene of Negro rioting the last two nights.

Arthur Mayse

This year of green lawns and scant summer is already offering to the vacationed and unvacationed its first hints of autumn. A day or two ago, we noted vine maple well-redened, some yellow leaves in the wild cherry, and a prevailing brown in the blossom clusters of the ocean spray.

At least, let it be a long, fruitful, hazy, golden fall by way of compensation; the sort, that lingers through Remembrance Day and ends just short of Christmas.

Another who shares that hope is Mrs. Edwin Underwood, who, with her husband, runs the Ta-Ta-Yet Indian sweater shop where East Saanich reserve fronts the Pat Bay Highway near Saanichton.

"I'm looking forward to our own Indian summer," Mrs. Underwood told us when we stopped by in the course of scouting for blackberry patches along the byroads.

Meanwhile, these August days are brisk ones for the Underwoods. Chief Edwin has moved the family house to a new location beside the store, and is busy putting the finishing touches to the job. With the tourist season at its zenith, Mrs. Underwood spends much of her time behind the counter.

Among recent customers who paused at Ta-Ta-Yet—the Saanich band's name for Shady Creek which threads the reserve—was a woman about whom Mrs. Underwood hopes to learn more.

Unobtrusive and pleasant-spoken, she bought a little totem for a souvenir, and slipped away after signing the guest book.

"Princess Salleh Halg," her signature reads. Home address, Kenya.

The remainder of the page, and those before and after it, are a roll call of American states and Canadian provinces.

"When we started here a few years ago," Mrs. Underwood recalls, "I was timid about dealing with tourists. We Indians are quick to retreat into our shells, especially if we feel someone may be unpleasant."

"But I needn't have worried. Everyone is very nice, even the few who come in and ask for a 's i w a s h' sweater."

When confronted with that term, hateful to Indian ears, Mrs. Underwood feigns bewilderment.

"I don't know that word," she informs her customer amiably. "But I do have

Topics of the Day

Two boys who ran away from home in Washington came to Victoria Monday but they were located quickly after they started shoplifting.

The youths were spotted taking a sweater in a store. On being caught a short while later it was discovered they had taken other articles from various stores earlier in the day.

Their parents came here by air Monday night, paid for the articles the boys had stolen and took the lads back home.

A man injured in a road accident early Saturday remains in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

He is Edgar Heyman, 3022 Craigowan, who suffered head injuries in a collision on the Malahat.

Keepers Force Captive Shark To 'Breathe'

A mud shark netted Saturday off the west coast of Vancouver Island, is standing on her tail today, and that isn't good.

Sharks must keep moving so that water is constantly passing over their gills. They are unlike other creatures of the sea who gulp water to get their supply of oxygen.

The captured shark, transferred to the Underside Gardens Sunday, is standing still today and divers at the Gardens are worried she may die for lack of oxygen.

Divers attempted on Monday to keep the shark on the move as they chased her around the pen, but today she cannot be chased. But the divers are not giving up yet—after preparing a rope halter for the shark they took off in a boat with the shark in tow.

Diver Bruce Champion said it is difficult to keep sharks in captivity but he hopes today's expedition will give the captured shark the oxygen she needs to survive.

UBCM Blasts Campbell Plan For Grants

The Union of B.C. Municipalities announced today it has made a formal protest to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell against his ground rules for provincial winter work grants.

In a circular letter to civic councils, received at City Hall this morning, the UBCM said it was obvious the government's reduced participation, two months after municipal budgets have been set, would upset many winter work plans.

It urged municipalities to bombard the minister with individual protests if the policy change will cause hardship.

"The UBCM has asked that this change in policy be rescinded or that it at least not be put into effect until the winter of 1965-66 in order that this year's winter work plans need not be affected and that you will have proper warning of reduced provincial participation in the future," the letter said.

Grain Exports Set Record

Wheat exports through Victoria in the crop year just ended set an all-time record.

Shipments totalled 7,902,697 bushels compared with 7,015,599 in the 1960-61 year.

An elevator spokesman said the bulk of the figure is due to Canadian contracts with Russia and China.

Figures for the total of grain handled here in the past year are still being compiled, but Victoria Grain Elevator Co. looks for a new record.

ALL GRAINS

This would include rye, oats and others, domestic shipments as well as exports.

Total B.C. shipments of wheat last year were 225,135,668 bushels compared with 190,276,711 in 1961-62, the previous provincial record year.

Biggest single month was January, when 25,820,982 bushels were shipped. Five years ago, 15,000,000 bushels in a single month was considered exceptional.

Vancouver shipped the most—200,858,000 bushels in the year ended Friday, Vancouver Merchants' Exchange reported.

HE HELPED A FRIEND . . . AND PAID

A man who said he was only trying to help a friend was fined $100 today for driving while disqualified.

Brant Ewing, 3120 Service Street, was disqualified from driving July 16. At 1:50 a.m. the next day he was found driving along Douglas Street.

Ewing told Magistrate William Ostler in city court this morning that he had a friend who "was incapable of driving. It was an awkward situation. I had to decide whether to help a friend or let him end up in jail."

Ewing added, "I made the wrong choice obviously."

KEEP IT INTIMATE

Manager Defends Centre

Sharp criticism by a senior citizen of the proposed citizens' recreational centre in Victoria Centennial Square misses the point, city manager Dennis Young indicated today.

He was commenting on remarks by Peter Davey, president of Victoria No. 3 Aged Pensioners, that the centre should not be built because it will only accommodate 400 at a time in its assembly hall.

Mr. Young countered that the city was not planning a massive arena for large-scale meetings but "an intimate centre for individual contacts among the senior citizens."

"Mr. Davey appears to misunderstand the purpose of the centre," he said.

PROVINCE SETS DEADLINE

$5 Million Museum to Open by 1967

The provincial government will pay half the cost as its grant to B.C. for the 1967 centenary.

This means that construction must start at the beginning of 1966, Works Minister W. N. Chant said today.

Tenders for the $5 million building will be called near the end of next year, he said.

Several stories high, the building will include a wing for the provincial archives with provision for future expansion.

The museum will be built on the block bounded by government, Elliott, Douglas and Belleville.

Elliott St. will probably be closed off to traffic.

It must be ready by the middle of 1967, he said.

A committee from the public works, recreation and provincial secretary's departments is working on plans.

The museum site is now a civil service parking lot.

Mr. Chant said negotiations are under way to buy nearby property for new parking facilities.

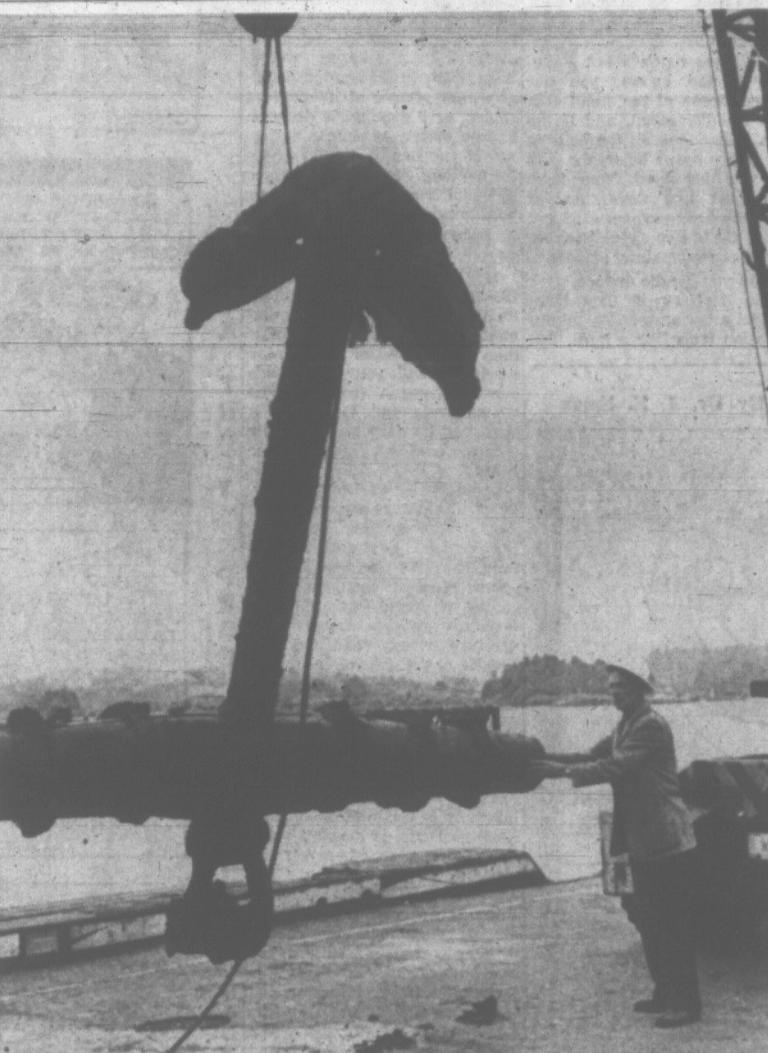

Eventually there will be a multi-level parking building, but this is "in abeyance" for the time being, Mr. Chant said.

Instead the plan is to pave a series of lots around the legislative precinct.

They will be paid for with $3-a-month parking fees charged all government employees.

Strategy Caucus Planned By Leaders After Hearing

Greater Victoria and Greater Vancouver civic leaders are expected to hold a strategy caucus here Wednesday.

The meeting is planned a couple of hours after the second Public Utilities Commission hearing into bus fare increase proposals opens at 10 a.m. in the Law Courts Building.

The walk out came after the PUC rejected Mr. Goldie's argument that it would serve merely as a rubber stamp to the government's wishes unless through a decision by the various civic leaders to form a united front.

FIGHT TOGETHER

Mr. O'Grady appeared at the Vancouver hearing on the same basis and joined the chief counsel D. M. Goldie when he walked out because of the "united front" agreement.

The walk out came after the PUC rejected Mr. Goldie's argument that it would serve merely as a rubber stamp to the government's wishes unless it took the position that its jurisdiction was not restricted to bus fares alone in examining B.C. Hydro's profits and losses.

He said Saanich potato growers so far seemed to have eliminated the danger of blight through extensive spraying.

"People are going into this with preconceived ideas. They are either for it or against it. How can they know until they study it?" Mr. Boulter asked.

"But we should enter discussions with an open mind."

He said he was pleased that candidates are running against him, indicating there is interest in the idea and giving the public a choice.

A group of interested persons is arranging a public meeting for Aug. 12 to hear statements by all the candidates for area representatives. Place will be announced later.

"To me, this is a very responsible position. Decisions are going to affect us for a good many years," Mr. Boulter said.

Eleven candidates will seek five seats on the pro-temp metro committee, representing Colwood, Langford, View Royal, Metchosin and North Saanich. The Sooke representative was elected by acclamation Monday when nominations closed. Elections will be Aug. 15.

Q. Please tell me the distance from Menzies Street and Dallas Road to Race Rocks lighthouse. Who owns the lighthouse—Canada or the United States?

A. The distance is 9.2 nautical miles to the Canadian-owned lighthouse. A nautical mile is 6,080 feet.

Q. Where may I obtain my visa and working permit for the United States? I understand there is now an office in Victoria and that it will not be necessary to go to Vancouver, B.C.

Clyne Defended By Union Leader

NANAIMO (CP)—A labor leader has criticized "vile statements" made by fellow unionists about J. V. Clyne, chairman of the board of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co., and other industrialists.

President Alastair McLeod said at a meeting of the Nanaimo, Alberni and District Labor Council that Mr. Clyne is just an officer of his company.

"And he has been doing a very good job for the people he represents. There is very little to be gained by denouncing him."

"If labor leaders worked as hard for their people as does Hon. J. V. Clyne for his, we might get somewhere."

Mr. McLeod questioned whether the present settlement of the office workers strike at the Mac-Powell operations at Port Alberni was a victory as claimed at a conference of the B.C. Federation of Labor last month.

"The settlement was a step on the road to binding arbitration, and I question very seriously whether this is a victory for the trade union movement," he said.

The federation conference had simply vilified Mr. Clyne without going into the real problems that confronted the labor movement.

TWO LESSONS

The Port Alberni strike had taught labor two lessons: That there is little to be gained from personal attacks on industrialists such as Mr. Clyne and "The tabor legislation we don't like is the same legislation we as citizens of the province voted for."

Bud Handley of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union said he agreed with Mr. McLeod's remarks about the federation conference.

"I didn't like the back-scratching that went on during the conference," he said.

He also had some doubts on the "victory" in the Alberni Valley.

SUNBATHERS AIM PROTEST AT LOW FLYER

COMOX (CP)—FO Joseph Charles Giroux from the RCAF station here was fined $200 for low flying after he told a court he was practising "coast crawling."

He explained he was flying at about 200 feet practising navigating by following the coastline at low altitude.

The legal minimum altitude where he was flying is 500 feet.

Giroux, a radio operator, was charged after sunbathers at Qualicum Beach on Vancouver Island complained a small civilian plane was flying at a low altitude over the beach.
